

5
10
15
20
25
30
35

An optical recording medium is provided with a substrate having a land and a groove alternately arranged in a predetermined direction, a data recording region provided on the land and the groove, and an identification mark recording region recorded with a data block identification mark. The identification mark recording region is provided on only one of the land and the groove.